Misys and SHP Align to Deliver Powerful Outcomes and Business Intelligence Solutions for Homecare Agencies

Raleigh, N.C., October XX, 2004 — Misys Healthcare Systems—a market leader in healthcare IT—today announced formation of a strategic alliance with Strategic Healthcare Programs (SHP), a nationally recognized healthcare data services company. Under this new relationship, the two companies will jointly develop a unique outcomes management solution for homecare agencies. The companies have also agreed to jointly deploy their resources to market the unique solution, which will leverage the strengths of the two companies' products, Misys Homecare™ and SHP for Agencies™.

"SHP is the industry's fastest growing provider of business intelligence services," said Keith Sturges, CEO of Misys Healthcare Systems' Homecare Systems business unit. "This close alliance between homecare and outcomes management solutions providers dramatically improved decision making for homecare agencies."

OASIS data entered into Misys Homecare by clinicians in the field and other mission-critical data residing in Misys Homecare software uploads seamlessly to SHP for Agencies™, where it is instantly analyzed and reported in real-time. From there, agencies receive information that helps them to respond to issues that matter most at any given moment, including clinical, operational and financial intelligence.

Barbara Rosenblum, president and CEO of SHP, says, "This partnership gives homecare agencies the most valuable information in the most efficient and effective form. No more retrospective paper reports--just powerful, current data that allows agencies to make accurate decisions."
